

Translation

The concept of our society is that every person demands change, but when it comes about their actions then everyone ignores. The slogans <sup>of revolution</sup> raise in rallies, thousands of <sup>written</sup> reforms introduce in ~~papers~~ papers, but it takes little time to compromise on a little ~~small~~ principle. The result is that the society has become like a double edged mirror.

the castles of dreams in one direction and defeats of reality in other direction. We all want correction of other but afraid from self accountability, so every person is the live example of darkness under the light of candle. Nations never organized by slogans, but character, and character built when a person prioritize honesty, otherwise collective success has become just aspiration.

Punctuation

If you look about you and consider the lives of other as well as your own, if you think how few are born with honour and how many die without name or children, how little beauty we see, and how few friends we have, how many diseases and how much poverty there is in the world, you will fall down upon knees and, instead of repining at one affliction, will admire so many blessing which you have received from the hand of god.

English Precise.

Title. Oratory in the Ancient Times.

The oratory is not an English word but considered as the valuable task in the ancient time. The orators of that time not only shaped future work but offered themselves for analysis on all time. But in the contemporary era, the art of public speaking has declined and the interest in the oratory has reduced due to growing number of public speakers, new communication techniques and less interest and time of people toward oratory. However, the orators of the ancient time paid great attention toward oratory. They not only take care of arrangement of their ideas but the proficiency of their language. One of the greatest orator of history is Sir Winston Churchill who has expressed themselves in many national and international forums. His speeches that are remembered today not only reflect perfection of ideas but the history of world.

① Sportsmanship is characterized as a habit.

① Sportsmanship is conceptualized as the characteristic of high moral disposition in which individual treats other nicely, behaves positively and courageously. He shows persistence and control toward his emotions while dealing with others. The virtues of sportsmanship are fairness, self control, courage, and persistence and respect towards everyone.

② The four elements of sportsmanship are the will to win, equity, fairness and good form. The balance between all these elements are crucial because if the one element dominates, other will be suppressed and the virtue of sportsmanship will be dismissed.

③ The desire to win often conflict with the other elements of the sportsmanship such as equity and fairness. The desire of win compelled a person toward cheating and breaking the rules of the sports, undermined the very essence of sportsmanship and its elements.

Sore loser is the behaviour mostly shown by the sports man after losing the game. They blame others for their defeat, made lame excuses, and not accepted their mistake.

While the bad winners often try to degrade opponents by reminding them of the defeat and criticizing their performance.

This behaviour undermined the very essence of sportsmanship, as it is against the virtues and basic elements of the sportsmanship.
