advice was not heeded, now we find ourselves in precisely the predicament he had predicted. Therefore, I urge you all to support the government's new economic policy which — though painful in short term — will yield beneficial results in the long run. Let's not, he continued, repeat the mistakes of Palt; let's move forward with determination and courage."

that taken over it. The writer who sells his pen for money basically also sells his conscience.

Real literature is that espoused the cause of right and stands against wrong, no matter how many sacrifices it have rendered to. But, such courageous writers are non-existent today. Many ^{literaries} are seen bowing before power corridors and they are busy in futile exercise of appealing the

QUESTION 3

Comprehension Passage

Q1

The fundamental error author identifies in popular understanding of tradition and progress is that these two forces are totally opposite to each other. Tradition represents past and conservation; whereas, progress represents future and innovation. This error is considered dangerous because it has caught us into intellectual trap.

Q2

The writer used historical examples to challenge the notion that progress

Date: _____

Day: _____

requires abandoning the past. He says that every great movement in history has involved selective acceptance of the past instead of total rejection. He cited the examples of European Enlightenment and great religious reformers.

Q3

The writer means that traditions are not dead to be ignored, they are living conversation. They guide us in future endeavours, without them, we become rootless and branchless. It is a dialogue in which present is interlinked with the past.

Q4

According to the passage, in modern world,

Date: _____

Day: _____

people are seeking meaning, purpose and identities. They are involved in different things such as spiritual healing, mental treatment and political movements to find their meanings and identities.

This reveals about contemporary society that it has shunned and ignored its past. That's why people are searching for meaning and purpose of their lives.

The author argues that distinguishing between valuable traditional and harmful ones requires "real intelligence and judgment" but such distinction is difficult to draw. Because

People are invariably biased by and prejudiced by their own perspective.
No matter how strong one's intellect is, one's opinions and thoughts are shaped by one's experiences. This is why, it is difficult to draw distinction between intelligence and judgement.

QNO 2 Pree's writing

The obsession with expertise has resulted in bizarre contradiction in our intellectual life. We are constrained to solve basic human issues even when knowledge has become specialised.
We look to different experts for solving our problems. But they view all things with a particular lens and does not discern the whole picture. The earlier writers had a coherent view of the world. But our intellectual world shows distorted view of the reality. Giving great authority to experts has weakened our own faculties of mind and we become more dependent. It has made us a passive consumer. Knowledge needs to be put in its proper place. Until we do this, we will be jack of all and master of none.

Gathering Knowledge

- 1) Jack of All, Master of None
- 2) Putting Knowledge Together
