Q2:-

Partial truths are not the whole story.

As the world is progressing day by day, ordinary people are chasing specific expertise in every aspect of life. This attitude results in loss of basic human intellect to deal daily life problems. Instead of focusing on bigger picture, people started to believe on smaller chunks of reality. Such bad habit of fragmenting truth cause inability to find solutions of the problems.

Today, modern world is unable to show one coherent story of different thinking as it was presented by pre-intellectual world. The ^{major} dependency on the expertise from smaller to bigger issues has damaged our belief on ordinary man thinking process and the ability ~~to~~ to judge.

The real intellect comes from ordinary life practices not from ^{accepting} the partial expert opinions.

In addition to it, viewing broader picture and to be dependent on basic intellect doesn't mean underlining expertise skills. However, it means to gather ideas into sensible view of difficult questions while thinking broadly and Literature of any society is the main pulse which is moral and spiritual representations of that society. The decline in literature and arts eventually ends with decline of nations. Unfortunately, literature in today's society has entangled by mafia. The writers sell their conscience for some amount. In reality, man of letters are those who stand with truth and write against cruelty even if he has to pay for repercussions. In today's world, such brave authors are few in number. Most of them are busy in seeking corners with powerful rulers and writing to attain their favours. Such an attitude is dishonesty to literature and betrayal to the nation itself.
