Literature is pulse of every society which expresses its spiritual and moral state. When literature of any nation declines, it understands that nation about to face troubles. Alas! Today's literature has become market-driven. The mafia has got it in its grip. The writer who sells his pen for money, he actually sells his conscience. A true scholar is one who raises the voice of truth and raise the pen against falsehood. Even if he has make many sacrifices. But in today's world there is shortage of that capable scholars. Often writers are seen bowing their heads at the doorstep of power. The right way to please the powerful class with its action is achieved. This is trachery against literature and betrayal of the nation.
