Ans:.

The minister, addressing the gathering, said my fellow citizens, "we stand today at a critical juncture in our nations' history. We must ask ourselves, are we prepared to face the challenges ahead or shall we succumb to despondency and inaction?" Dr. Ahmed, the renowned economist, had warned us last year that unless immediate reforms are undertaken, the economy will collapse; however, his advice was not heeded now. We find ourselves in precisely the predicament he had predicted: therefore,

(1)

Ans:

The author identifies the misconception in the popular understanding of tradition and progress.

Which misconception??

And this misconception is considered dangerous because on one hand it stifles innovation and on second hand it break free from obsolete constraints.

Ans: The author uses historical examples such as the scholars of European Renaissance, the great religious reforms and every scientific revolution are challenging the notion that progress requires abandoning the past.

Ans:

The writer describes tradition as a living conversation across generations rather than a static repository of dead customs because every future generation represents the tradition of past and still tradition is conserved and not have vanished yet.

Ans.:

The paradox exists in the modern search for meaning such as exotic spiritualities, therapeutic techniques, and political movements. This reveals about contemporary society that some traditions embody hard-won wisdom and deserve preservation; others enshrine injustice and demand abolition.

(5)

Ans.:

I do not agree that such distinction is possible because some traditions of one nation are considered dangerous for some one and it is difficult to distinguish among them.

Little Knowledge is Dangerous

Lost Wholeness in Modern Intellectual Culture 07/20

As knowledge becomes more specialized, human find themselves less able to deal with basic problems. Being an expert in one field does not make a person wise about life as a whole. Humans see the world through particular lens depending on his discipline whether he is an economist, a biologist, or a psychologist. This particular lens hinders the progress and hide the problems of other discipline so that no one can understand them. Today's world looks like a broken mirror and no way to put the pieces back together into a clear image.

The experts have weakened the human trusts. This dependence on experts turning active citizens into passive consumers who simply accept whatever expert opinion are given. Human need people who can move freely between different fields of knowledge to solve the complicated questions for the betterment of humanity. Human also need schools and universities that teach students to
