Introduction

Max Weber

is a renowned German sociologist who is known for his theory of bureaucracy. In this theory he explained the types of authority. It became very popular among sociologists. However, this theory also drew criticism for its demerits.

Max Weber's typology of Authority

Max Weber defined authority as, "Power that is Sanctioned"

Types

Traditional

Authority

Charismatic

Authority

Rational-legal

Authority

A) Traditional Authority

The type of authority which is traditionally enjoyed by elder is called traditional authority. It is mostly found in rural setting.

This type of authority is based on respect, reverence and affection.

Date: _____

Day: _____

For example; The authority of parents or pirs in Pakistan society.

B) Charismatic Authority

The authority which an individual enjoys due to his charisma is charismatic authority. People appeal to the charisma of a person.

For example; King

Martin Luther or

Nelson Mandela etc

an example of Charismatic authority.

C) Rational-legal Authority

The authority

which is legally sanctioned and based on rational appeal. This type of authority is the basis of modern bureaucracy.

For Example; Any Constitutional Sanctioned authority.

How bureaucratic rationality promoted efficiency

According to Max Weber, bureaucracy is characterised by

i) Division of labour - Specialisation

ii) Impartiality

iii) Rules & regulations

iv) Rigid hierarchy

v) Fixed tenure

vi) Permanence

Date: _____

Day: _____

Division of labor and specialisation enhance efficiency in modern state organisations.

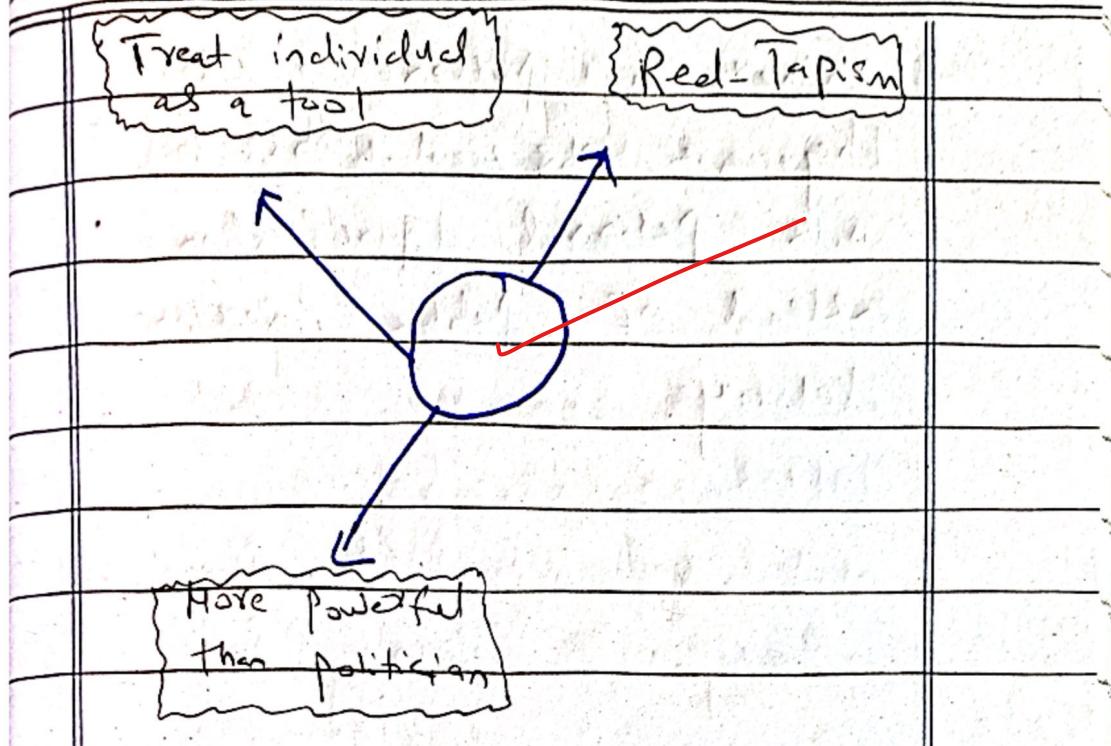

As bureaucrats are appointed on the basis of merit and qualification, they are most competent to perform their jobs.

The impartiality ensures that work is done without fear or favour.

Their fixed tenure and continuity also ensure efficiency.

How bureaucratic rationality undermines democracy and human agency

Bureaucratic rationality undermines democracy and human agency considerably. It can be studied as following:

A) Red-Tapism

Bureaucratic obsession with rules and procedures contributed to red-tapism. It undermined democracy by ~~harming~~ the growth and development of a country.

B) Treat individual as a tool

They treat an individual as a tool

They are affected obsessed with personal glorification instead of public service delivery.

c) More powerful than politicians

With the development of modern state, their powers have increased manifold.
They are now more powerful than elected representatives of people. The continuity of service also ensured they remain at the helm for long.

Conclusion:

Max Weber defined three types of authority — traditional, ~~charismatic~~, factual-legal. Bureaucratic

Nationality is ensured; efficiency in working of modern State institutions but it also undermines democracy and individual agency in number of ways.

to conform individual to certain beliefs,
norms and values.

Role of culture and ideology in maintaining social order

Culture and ideology play a pivotal role to maintain social order.

Every society has its own culture and ideology.

Society uses culture and ideology to conform individual to its values, norms and beliefs. Every thing we do is culture.

It is the most dominant part of a society.

When social order is fragile, society collapses.

It is culture and ideology which bind individuals to

Day: _____

group and make him observe societal norms and values.

~~For Example, Ideology of Pakistan is Islam.~~ Islam guides us in every affair of society which in turn preserve social order.

Similarly, 'Pakistani culture' is a dominant culture of Pakistan. It has many sub-cultures. The Pakistani culture helps state preserve social order.

Formal and informal Mechanisms of social control in contemporary Society

Formal and informal mechanisms which are

Used in contemporary society are following:

A) Taunt

Taunt is an informal mean of social control. People taunt and mock person for this delinquent behavior. It helps in correcting delinquent's behavior.

For example, in

Pakistani Society,

Date: _____

Day: _____

People treat unemployed for lack of having job.

B) Criticism

Criticism is another informal means of social control. When a person does an abominable
or abnormal act, people tend to criticise him.

Criticism also helps in conforming individuals to society's values and norms.

For example; people criticise state for inefficient public service delivery. Government in return try to address people's grievances.

Date: _____

Day: _____

C) OSTRACISM

In ostracism,
society expell person from society by the people for violating moral.
It is a harsh step which is taken only when person commits serious violation.

For example; In Pakistan's rural societies when a girl eloped with her builder, she is ostracised.

D) LAW

Law is a formal means of social control.
Violation of it invited penalty and person is arrested in jail for violating state's law.

Date: _____

Day: _____

For example; when a person commits murder, he shall be prosecuted under <sup>Section 302 of</sup> section 302 of PPC

✓ E) Police, Army etc

State has Police, army and other law enforcement agencies for social control. They are used when laws of the state are violated.

For example; when something is stolen, Police is bound to arrest the culprit and make recovery.

Conclusion

culture and ideology preserve and maintaining social order by its set of beliefs, values and norms. However, state also has many formal and informal means to maintain social control.

Social Stratification

Introduction

Social stratification is division of society on different lines. Every human society is stratified on the basis of class, caste and gender. Some sociologists regard it as essential while others regard it as exploitative. We will discuss both these assumptions in great detail.

Day: _____

Definition

Definition

Social Stratification

is defined as;

"Division of society on the basis of class, caste or gender."

Human societies are stratified along different lines.

For example; we have

Eastern and Western societies.

Eastern societies are divided on the lines of caste, class and gender;

while Western on class and Gender only.

Functional theory of Social Stratification

According to functional theory of social stratification, different components of society work together for complete harmony. Social stratification is necessary for development and growth of society.

i) With respect to Gender, caste, class

According to functionalists, society is stratified on gender, caste and class to perform the whole working of society in unison.

On the basis of gender.

Date: _____

Day: _____

male and female roles are distributed.

For example; Male performs the work of earning money, while female does the works of home and takes care of children

They both are essential for a society to work perfectly

Hindus' societies are based on Caste system.

The upper caste Hindus are Brahmins, the lower one Shudras or Achorts

This division is necessary for harmonious working of Hindus society. otherwise, it will break the social fabric of Indian society.

This is functionalist perspective of social stratification.

Conflict perspective of social stratification

Karl Marx is the major proponent of this perspective. According to conflict perspective, societies are stratified to ensure 'inequality'. Social stratification ensures the poor remain poor and the rich remain rich. It cements power, gender and class inequalities.

For example, women are reduced to household chores because they will challenge the authority of men when they are

Date: _____

Day: _____

allowed to step outside of home.

Similarly,

Caste system existed

that upper caste Hindus were more powerful and privileged; while, the lower-caste toil in inferior places.

Similarly Karl Marx has a sound view on caste;

According to him,

all social institutions

particularly, religion,

family and political

use social stratification

to exploit masses,

create inequality

and to remain

powerful and resourceful.

Conclusion

is a division of society on the basis of caste, class or gender. Every human society is stratified.

According to functionalists, social stratification is necessary for harmony and sound working of society. But, for conflict theorists, social stratification is a tool to cement inequalities and maintain power for top-tier in the society.
