Title: Reorganizing Perspectives: a Need of collective Action Towards Challenges

Specialized understanding is leading a human unable to deal with ordinary problems. Specialists in certain fields like economy, science and technology don't provide solutions for our lives but end up narrow down our mission. Economist sees human as rational, psychologist as collection of learned patterns and biologist as a carrier of genes but each lacks the other perspective. Problems like climate change require the unified approach and collective action based on economical, scientific, political, and cultural views but our institutions lack this approach. Today, world has lost the wider and diverse understanding. Each experts adopted own viewpoint and undermining other making it difficult to adopt collective approach. We have lost our critical thinking in dealing with daily challenges with wisdom. This is due to over-reliance of experts who are making us passive consumers. We have to adopt inclusive approach that applies to broader picture of life. Today we require people and institutions to reorganize the perspectives in unified view. we have to realize
