Answer:

The fundamental errors which are identified by the author in understanding tradition and progress are the two extreme views regarding tradition and progress. As per the author, holding one view completely opposite of another is the basic error and it is dangerous both past and future progress are closely interlinked with each other, thus, choosing any of side is dangerous.

Question No 2

The author challenges the notion of abandoning the past for the sake of future progress. He explains the interlink of past with future by using Renaissance example. The Renaissance never rejected past but made endeavour for future progress. They remained connected with classical era.

Question No 3

The writer describes tradition as a living conversation across generation with the aid of example of tree. The way the tree never cuts its roots in order to grow, similarly connectivity with the past is like a conversation across generations.

Question No 4

According to the author, the modern generation is running behind seeking meaning and purpose. It could be possible if they connect themselves with the past just accumulating the knowledge rather than blindly sticking with it.

Question No 5
