SUBJECTIVE PART — PART-II

- Q2. Historians & analysts seem to be reluctant in reusing the term 'WORLD WAR'. However, it is very much in vogue. Comment in comparative settings.
- Q3. From the cold war in ideological settings to the cold war of economic fronts, the scenario has changed but the story remains the same. Comment.
- Q4. Russian and Chinese foreign policies are clear evidence of their revisionist approach to world politics. Discuss the manifests and impacts of both towards revival of a multipolar world.
- Q5. Revival of terrorism and insurgency in Pakistan are being catalyzed by instability in Afghanistan. Suggest policy measures to bring stability on western borders based upon changing regional dynamics.
- Q6. Middle East has resurfaced as a hotspot of global power politics. Carryout a comprehensive cause-effect analysis of the regional dynamics based upon theoretical constructs of IR.
- Q7. Critically evaluate the balance of the terror scenario in South Asia based on deterrent stability in the region. Also briefly explain nuclear doctrines of Pakistan and India in comparative settings.
- Q8. Failure of liberal internationalism has led to heightened use of the realpolitik framework in international relations. Comment on the basis of contemporary developments of Asia-Pacific and Euro-Atlantic regions.
